I am satisfied that Cancer is hereditary in my family. My father died of it, a sister of my mother died of it, and my own sister died of it. My feelings may be imagined, when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way that it could not be cut out. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew steadily worse, until I learned that I was destined to follow the others of my family. I took Sarsaparilla, which, from the first day, forced out the poison, and continued to use until I had taken several bottles, when I found myself well. I know that Sarsaparilla cured me.

SHE KNEW.

On the front row we sat,
While her large opera hat
Quite sheltered us both from the rear,
And enabled us to see
My great passion to tell
To her charmingly shrewd like plot was.

"Was an opera troupe,
Where the star was a 'happo,'
Ballets and of scenery a lot,
Now, what think you?" I said,
As the light shone red—
"Touc ensemble is fine, it is not!"

As I spoke came a blast
From the orchestra;
All the brass horns were put to the test.
Ah! no Boston girl she
With her "hiss" of "the"—
My companion came from the far west

She said as she smiled
On the great ballet waltz:
"They are gradually dressed, no dispute;
The ensemble is fine, it is not!"
And the chorus intoned,
But there's far, far too much of the 'trot'!"

A Great Composer.

George Frederick Handel, although a native of Germany, being born in Halle, Saxony, on Feb. 24, 1685, passed the greater part of his life in England. Even in childhood he sacrificed his hours of play and his meals for the study of music, and at 10 years of age composed a set of sonatas that were not without value. As a composer, Handel was great in every style. In his choral works, he throws at an immeasurable distance all who preceded and followed him. Very soon after his arrival in London, in 1710, Handel attracted the attention of Queen Anne, and the Duke and Duchess, composed to celebrate the treaty of Utrecht, gained him a pension of £200. Handel died on Good Friday, April 13, 1759, and was buried in Westminster Abbey. The composer gave a performance of his own compositions in 1749, by which £500 were realized for the Foundling Hospital, which institution he valued £7,000 from the annual repetition of this performance during the ten following years.—Philadelphia Times.

A Shrewd Otter.

One day as I was standing on the shore of Cranberry bog pond I saw a large flock of ducks near the middle of the pond and soon after discovered three others in the flock, but not near enough to shoot. While watching the maneuvers of the others they started down the pond in a straight line for the ducks. The old leader struck out lively, leaving his mates far behind, and as he neared the ducks he dived and presently I saw one of the ducks disappear beneath the surface after a considerable struggle, the remainder of the flock rising and flying away in great commotion. The otter had gone under the flock and selected a certain duck and pulled him under. A few minutes later the otter made his appearance near the south shore of the pond with the duck in his mouth.—Forest and Stream.

Improvement in Farm Tools.

We hear very little about the advance of improvement in agricultural implements and farm machinery, but that branch of the industrial pursuits of the country is keeping abreast of the times, nevertheless. The plow of twenty-five years ago is now a curiosity, and those who sold it are now collectors of it. It was made to serve the purposes for which it was manufactured. And the plow of a decade since, while perhaps not so crude, has been abandoned for a better implement. And so it is all through the list of agricultural implements and farm machinery, and in another quarter of a century it is probable that the farmer will walk no more in the cultivation of his farm.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Jeffrey Very Soft Hearted.

Did I know Jeffrey? One of his qualities was to be always in love. Sydney Smith used to talk about Jeffrey's seventy-two loves, and at that time put me at the top of the list. He was certainly very soft for a time, but he fell off in consequence of my taste for Germany and German literature, which (being completely ignorant of it) he could not bear. He "tote about" on a class on Goethe, whom he treated as a dandy, and as a dandy he was kind, generous, an excellent friend and had great talents.—Sarny Austin to Guizot.

When It Pinches Us.

"It is curious," remarks William Phillips, "to observe how much more enormous and outrageous we are apt to account a piece of dishonesty if we ourselves are pinched by it. I thought it said, and a heinous thing in the land, when, the other day, a man in my neighborhood was dishonest about a business. But when I discovered, afterwards, that this same man had taken a premium out of my own pocket and not paid it over, my indignation knew no bounds. Then I felt what a crime dishonesty was!"—St. Louis Republic.

His Ring of Truth.

A young man of Hawkinsville, Ga., and his "best girl" quarreled some days ago, and remained "at outs" with each other until the young man relented and began to devise some plan to "make up." He finally decided to try the effects of a flag of truce, and cutting a delicate piece of white ribbon into the shape of a miniature flag, he sealed it in a sweetly perfumed envelope and forwarded it to his fair enemy. It had the desired effect, and she at once gave him permission to cross the line and be happy again.—Detroit Free Press.

Metals in the Sun.

Of the metals discovered in the sun the most important are sodium, magnesium, barium, calcium, zinc, copper, aluminum, nickel, chromium and iron. Many of the rarer and less known metals would also appear to be there in some abundance, judging by the facility with which their presence may be detected. Although heavier metals, such as platinum and gold, have not been seen, it is by no means followed that they are absent. Their weight would prevent them being easily found by the spectroscopic.—New York Telegram.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at J. A. Strearling's drug store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. The trial bottle is simply enormous in its very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

CHARITY HOSPITAL.

SAD SCENES AMONG AN UNFORTUNATE CLASS OF PEOPLE.

Mission Work on Blackwell's Island.
Nine Hundred Sufferers Under One Roof—A Dying Girl—Noble Deeds of Charity—Outside Work.

The ladies of the mission gathered up their packages and papers and divided in two parties—one to visit the penitentiary and to there the beautiful work which Elizabeth Fry initiated, the other to the Charity hospital; and with the latter I went. A small room is set apart there for the use of the mission. The tables in the room were covered with baskets of fruit, glasses of jelly, bottles of beef tea, cans of oysters, and various other delicacies. By each basket lay a number of papers and religious tracts. After brief religious services the ladies separated, each taking her own basket and reading matter to the ward she was assigned to.

Here, under this one roof, are 500 human beings in every conceivable stage of suffering. The pangs of poverty are increased a hundred fold when disease seizes in its cruel clutches the unhappy victim. Few people are fortunate enough to escape the knowledge of bodily pain.

Most, indeed, can recollect at least one season of physical wretchedness. To be sure, there are some who are born with a silver spoon in their mouths, and who are surrounded by doctors who do all that science and art can do to relieve their sufferings.

But the vast majority of the population are poor, and the poor are the ones who suffer most. They are the ones who are crowded into tenement houses, where they are exposed to all the evils of poverty and disease.

They are the ones who are the victims of the "great city," where the struggle for existence is a constant one, and where the only way to survive is to be the strongest.

Miss Alcott's Fascinating Manuscript.

Three years later Mr. Alcott received from his daughter the manuscript of a book which Louisa had written according to the inspiration which was always her best, i. e., that which came from actual observation, and what may be called the idealization of facts. Miss Alcott said once that she wrote the book "to prove she could not write it," in other words, having been asked by Robert B. Ross, to prepare "a good girl's story," she declared she could not do it, caring so much more for "boys" than she did for girls; but, if she attempted it, it must be about her own sisters and herself.

Accordingly, a book was written on this charming principle. On its receipt one of the firm took the manuscript home, and, without mentioning the author, handed it to his daughter, a girl of about 18 years, to read. Intrenching himself behind a newspaper, I was told he watched the effect of the story upon this unconscious critic. Page after page was turned, and every variety of expression showed itself on the young face bending above the book.

What would she have said, I wonder, had she known her proud distinction? Twenty-five novels a piece. The novel is their "Woman." But such was the case. Finding it impossible to induce her to leave this fascinating manuscript, the publisher wisely decided that a book which could, in manuscript, so captivate one girl, would, in print, reach the hearts of many, and accordingly this first little book, freighted with success and fame, was launched.—Lucy C. Lillie in The Commonwealth.

THE "POLAR STAR" +DIAMOND+

Round Cornered, Square, 26 Mm. Each Side.

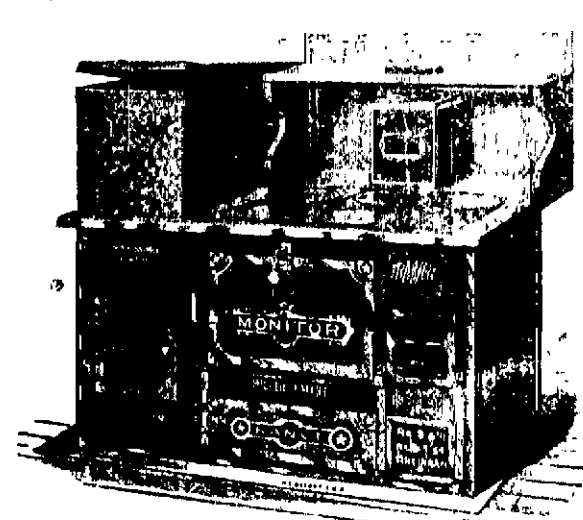

The "Polar Star" weighs 40 karats. It was once in the possession of a Russian Nobleman by the name of Yousouposch. It was purchased by Paul I. of Russia for an immense sum and is still among the Russian crown jewels. It is a splendid brilliant.

THE "PITT" DIAMOND.

The famous Pitt Diamond is one of the crown jewels of France. Whether Governor Pitt bought it or stole it has been a matter of controversy. The Governor published a pamphlet to prove that he came by it honestly; but judging from the developments of the Warren Hastings trial, the probabilities are the other way. However this may be, Pitt possessed the diamond at a time when the Duke of Orleans wanted one, and he sold it for $650,000. At the French Revolution it was stolen. But to possess a diamond worth half a million is worse than owning an elephant. The thief, not being a king, could not justify his title; and after various struggles between policy and covetousness, he did the best thing to be done under the circumstances, he sent it back. Napoleon the Great wore it in the hilt of his state sword. The lesser Napoleon exhibited it on state days to his people.

An Acquiescence.

Trouble is likely to grow out of the marriage of the Springfield colored couple, Walter T. Casey and Luella M. Guine, linked for life by Rev. Sheen in Decatur last Monday evening. A note of the wedding was published in the Springfield News, and the father of the groom, S. V. Casey, published a card in the News declaring that his son perceived himself as he will not be 21 until Sept. 4th, '89. The card concludes: "Walter has been very grateful to his poor father, who is nearly and in declining health. This is the reward I get for graduating him. Such is life."

After a Pardon.

Mrs. Fields, the aged mother of Albert Fields, the desperate young lover who fired two shots at Miss Florence Kilpatrick at the home of Marion Moore, near Harrisburg, one Sunday morning last summer and came near killing her, is calling upon our citizens to secure signatures to a petition for a pardon for her son. Young Fields got a sentence of 14 years for his blood crime. The petition is not numerously signed, but naturally the mother is very anxious to have her son at liberty.

Religious.

Rev. J. P. McLean preached a strong sermon on "Light" at the Universalist church last night. A good audience was in attendance. The interest is increasing. The professor showed how the solemnity of the Universalist denomination has been the light permeating the orthodox creeds and overthrowing the doctrines of depravity and endless punishment. There will be preaching to-night.

Merry Massacensis.

Another delightfully enjoyable and dancing party was given last night by the Massacensis Club at the Red Men's Hall, it being after the midnight hour before the company dispersed. J. J. Stevens, who instituted the local tribe was among the guests. The tribe is rapidly growing and will soon reach 100. It is an order of protection and honor and was founded 1872. The Decatur members know how to enjoy life and always have merry parties. There will soon be need of a large hall for reception nights.

The Members of the Decatur Dramatic Club.

The members of the Decatur Dramatic club, the young ladies especially, are very anxious for the organization to secure a suitable hall on the second floor of some building in which a permanent stage can be fitted up, and where performances may be given. The ladies are enthusiastic over the project. They will soon have their fondest dreams realized, for the club is rich in money and resources.

The Whistling Lady.

Mrs. Alice J. Shaw, the whistling prima donna and queen of all artists as a whistler, fresh from her triumphs in England, where she whistled before the Prince and Princess of Wales and the nobility, and everywhere won the admiration of the press and public by her bewitching art and fascinating gifts, will appear at the opera house Monday night, assisted by a fine company of musicians. The Boston Transcript says: "Miss Shaw is like the sprightly, etherealized piccolo. Sometimes it chirps like a canary; it has the sweetness of the mocking-bird, and it is always under Mrs. Shaw's control, whether for long letters or for brilliant and elegant and it has volume enough to be in tune with the piano."

GAVE AWAY $10,000.

The Probate court at Lincoln has a communication from Emma Susan Oglesby, wife of ex-Gov. Oglesby, concerning the John D. Gillett will. She says that in 1882 her father presented her with $10,000, which he subsequently loaned for her and he collected the interest for her. Later he returned the notes to her. In his will he bequeathed to her the sum of $10,000, which is claimed by some of the heirs to represent the money used in the above transaction, and therefore, not intended for her. Mrs. Oglesby explains that she does not think this to be the case, but rather than cause family dissensions, she has given up all claim to the $10,000 bequeathed her in the will. Had there been no objection Mrs. O. would have received the extra $10,000 making a total of $20,000 from her father besides the land, horses and cattle.

Going Ahead with Electric Speed.

V. H. Parks is in receipt of a letter from M. A. Jackson, Detroit, Mich., vice-president of the Detroit Electrical works, in which he says:

A rider will be added to the bill, so that the city may be delivered in the same manner. All other discussions are made, the iron having been ordered, and arrangements made with parties to be constructed.

Funeral of Mr. Zollars.

The funeral of the venerable Frederick Zollars took place near Macon this afternoon. Rev. Wiley, of the Presbyterian church officiating. Mr. Zollars was born Dec. 11, 1801, and was therefore in the 86th year of his age. He was married 65 years ago. Two years ago there was a large reunion at the home place, attended by the descendants of the old gentleman; among his sons several are prominent in business and the profession. He died on Wednesday morning, March 13. A grand-daughter of the deceased is the wife of Supervisor H. O. Montgomery.

Mr. J. C. Biggar, the son of the "She" company, who injured her knee by a fall at the opera house in this city, has been forbidden to go on the stage for a number of weeks. The injury mends slowly. Frank Mayo in "The Royal Guard."

Joe Howard, Jr., in speaking of Mr. Mayo in this play says: "Not to see Frank Mayo in 'The Royal Guard,' the Queen's adventure in the 'Royal Guard,' is to miss a grand dramatic treat. The play is the best constructed romance drama of the day. The authors have most cleverly transferred the ideas of the author of 'Les Trois Mousquetaires' into sterling dramatic shape, and the actors have caught the spirit of the dramatists in the rendering of the characters. That of d'Artagnan shows such dash, breeziness, humor, daring and self-possession, tempered by a comical air of modesty, that the ladies have fallen in love with him, and men's hearts swell at the portrayal of his brave acts and noble demeanor, even while he is in rage, having only his good sword, 'Bobby,' as his friend."

The company will appear at the opera house next Wednesday evening, March 20.

THE Y. M. C. A. rooms were filled last night when Dr. Harshbarger delivered his address on "Eating and Drinking." It was a highly instructive talk on what to eat and drink—one of the best addresses of the series.

Times: He keeps the audience in roars of laughter, great applause greeted him, and he was recalled four times. It seemed as though they could not get enough of him, he was so brimful of mirth.

Yonkers: One of the funniest humorists we have ever heard.

Telegram: The humor of Mr. Marshall P. Wilder was of a button-busting nature, which kept the audience in a convulsed state of laughter.
